ARKANSAS AUTISM PARTNERSHIP

A Medicaid Waiver Program

... putting the pieces together
for young children with autism

Where?

It will be a statewide program that is offered in the homes and community settings identified by the parents as significant in the child's functioning.

How much?

There is no cost or co-pay for this program.

What Happens?

A team of professionals will evaluate eligible children with autism and, with paraprofessionals, provide one-on-one intervention in their homes for up to 30 hours per week. The team will utilize individualized strategies that have been proven effective with children with autism in building skills in areas of cognition, communication, self-care, socialization and appropriate behavior. Parents will be trained and included as members of the team. Additionally, there will be administrative and programmatic oversight included in the program.

What about the parents?

Parents will be considered active members of the team for this treatment and will be trained to use the strategies included in their child's treatment plan. Parents must be present during the intervention delivered by the team to learn the program and will then implement the plan on their own at least 14 hours per week.

Who will work with my child?

Non-profit provider agencies who have applied and been certified as providers for this program will recruit and hire the staff to deliver these services. These agencies are experienced in providing services to children with disabilities. Families will select the agency with whom they choose to work from a list of qualified agencies.

On the waiting list for the Alternative Community Services Waiver?

Your child may remain on the waiting list and still receive services from the Autism Waiver. If, however, your child is offered a slot on the ACS waiver while the autism waiver services are ongoing, you would be required to choose which service you prefer.
